ARMY AND NAVY NOTES

National Naval Reserve Bill To Be Amended.

[From The Tribune Bureau.] Washington, November 7. CORPS TO MAN RESERVE FLEET .-The Navy Department is getting in touch with all ex-service men who are eligible to become members of the proposed nabefore Congress to authorize the creation of this reserve corps, but an amended bill will be presented at the coming sesgion, and an effort made to secure its ioption. Congress is on record as favoring & reserve corps for the army, having led the term of enlistment from the colors four years, and the remainder of the enlistment period to be considered service in the reserve unless the soldier desires to re-enlist at the end of four years' service for another term of seven

Secretary of the Navy from the ex-service men expressing a desire to become identihas been in communication with maritime associations and has been furnished the and individual addresses of men in the service of the merchant marine. It is service of the merchant marine. It is purposed to have these men identified with the reserve corps.

Experience has shown that war conditions double the peace demands on the personnel of the navy. The reserve corps will be established for use on the outhersk of hostilities to man the reserve feet to complete to a war basis the complements of the ships of the active fleet, and for commissioning an enormous fleet of auxiliaries. If this reserve is created it is planned that the members shall have a period of active service with the fleet. This period may be a short annual one a manœuvre of mobilization or a more protracted one, at the convenience of the individual.

It is not purposed to offer a financial bonus to the ex-service men or those who will become identified with the reserve corps, but rather to help the members in a social way to keep in touch with other members. This will be done by providing places of assembly and by uniforming, equipping and giving members of the reserve will become a great social institution where men who have served in the feet.
